

news-people

O'Neill

Kotulak

Martin

JAMES M. O'NEILL, associate editor of the Camden (N. J.) Courier-Post, retired July 1. He started his newspaper career in 1926 as a police reporter for the old Camden Daily Courier and later served as courthouse reporter, rewrite man and city editor.

RONALD KOTULAK, 29, a Chicago Tribune reporter for six years, has been named science editor, succeeding Roy Gibbons, who retired June 1. Mr. Kotulak switched from engineering at Wayne State university, Detroit, to journalism at the University of Michigan.

F. FISKE MARTIN has been named editor of Octoraro Newspapers, Quarryville, Pa., publishers of the Sun-Ledger. He was formerly assistant editor of Nash Newspapers, Somerville, N. J.

in the news

Andrews

Ahearn

Schmerler

CHARLES L. ANDREWS will join the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner Aug. 1 as promotion director. Mr. Andrews comes from the Newspaper Printing Corporation where he has served in a promotion capacity since 1945.

JAMES F. AHEARN, who has served as Trenton, N. J., correspondent for the Hackensack (N. J.) Record since January, 1961, will become assistant to the editor of the editorial page, effective Sept. 1.

A. DAVID SCHMERLER is now undergoing training at the Record's Trenton bureau and will assume full duties as Trenton correspondent on Aug. 1.

CPYRGHT